

Standard Template to Develop an Expert Level Outline for Your Persuasive Speech

Convincing the audience to agree with your stance is the actual purpose of a persuasive speech. Often this type of essay is written on a controversial topic and you take one side and later you try to substantiate it for the purpose of convincing your audience.

If you can provide a solution to the problem in a structured manner, then your persuasive speech would be an effective one. Convincing your audience with plausible examples is your basic target. Any idea that is not supported by related examples is of no significance. This substantiating of reason with relevant examples should also be clearly stated in the template of the outline as well.

In a persuasive essay, the problem that essay writer want to address is not necessarily to be a real problem. It's up to you which problem is shortlisted by you to be addressed in your essay.

Like any other type of essay, the format of the persuasive essay is almost identical. an introduction with an attractive hook is imperative. Then the main body has to be constituted of your arguments and their supporting ideas and finally a summary. For a persuasive essay, you do not have to start writing immediately rather you should take some time to sketch your major arguments. Rough drafting would help you to write an effective essay.

In the template of the outline, you have to pay special attention because this is the part of the essay that would develop an effective impression. You have to write this part with such perfection and creativity that the reader or examiner can assume it is a logical and well-researched essay. If you feel under-confident then You just have to choose a topic and ask online writers to write my essay service. The outline is like a blueprint, upon which the entire building would be constructed.

In the outline, the choice of heading, words, and sentences should be appropriate because you have to convey the entire message in this small portion. Whether it is an introduction or main body, as a writer you have to make sure that you do not write long sentences rather it should be brief and precise. The sentence should be of appropriate length where the idea is conveyed. On the other side, you have to make sure that the headings or subheadings should not be based on a few words that do not convey a proper message.

In the template of the outline, you have to make sure that ideas are not scattered and random rather you should be able to develop coherence by using transition ideas. Writers of any essay writing service are well-equipped to make sure that they do not skip any aspects.

INTRODUCTION

Grab the attention of the audience: (Such a statement that makes audience/reader attentive)

Thesis: (State your interpretation of the specific problem)

Qualification: (For a better impression or to keep the audience engaged, share what are your expertise to talk on that specific problem)

Main Body

Argument 1: (This is the reason that would be supporting/substantiating your main thesis. This should be your strongest argument that has the most plausible explanations and examples)

Supporting idea/example 1

Supporting idea/example 2

Supporting idea/example 3

A transition sentence to connect argument 1 and 2

Argument 2: Second argument/reason for the reader to agree with your stance

Supporting idea/example

Supporting idea/example

Supporting idea/example

TRANSITION SENTENCE: Connection between second and third argument

Argument 3: (This is the final chance for you to support your argument for the solution of the problem)

Supporting idea/example

Supporting idea/example

Supporting idea/example

Transition statement: This should lead to the conclusion of your persuasive essay.

CONCLUSION

Summary: Here the purpose is to reinforce the idea that was initially stated in the introduction.